GREAT REPUBLICAN VICTORY

What the Latest Returns from Tuesday's Bout Show.

Day Passed Without Surprise and With no Material Change in Political Complexion.

COUNTRY STANDS PAT.

Elections were held Tuesday in 42 states, while the results in a number of instances were of unusual interest, that there was no great surprise. Throughout the South the Democratic State and Congressional tickets have been selected by the usual majorities. In the West and East the states remain aligned as two years ago. The Democratic or Republican columns show no material change, the Democrats making gains in some instances and the Republicans in others. The Republicans retained control of the lower house by a good majority.

Perhaps the widest general interest in the election was centered in the remarkable fight for Governor waged in the State of New York between Hughes and Hearst.

The latest returns available show that Hughes, while losing nearly all the principal cities of the State, was successful with about 60,000 plurality. The rural districts brought about the Republican victory.

Massachusetts re-elected Curtis Guild, Republican, Governor, over District Attorney John B. Moran, of Boston, Democrat.

Pennsylvania elected Stuart, Republican, for Governor over the fusion opposition by the usual Republican plurality.

Michigan, Iowa, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Connecticut, Indiana, and Wisconsin rolled up Republican pluralities, although there was some falling off from the usual vote in Iowa.

Nebraska shows a big Republican gain.

Ohio also shows Republican gains over Pattison in the vote of last year.

New Mexico and Arizona have voted against the proposition to enter the Union as a single State.

Gov. Hoch was re-elected in Kansas.

The Republicans carried Utah, Wyoming, Washington and Nevada, while both parties are claiming Colorado. Later reports show the election of the Republican ticket in Colorado.

Montana seems to have been carried by the Republicans and Texas takes its usual place in the Democratic column.

Congressman Babcock, of Wisconsin, formerly chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee, failed to be elected.

In Rhode Island James W. Higgins, Democrat, was elected Governor, but the rest of the Republican State ticket was elected.

West Virginia elected the whole Republican ticket, electing a Republican Legislature.

Wisconsin re-elects Gov. Jas. Davidson, Republican, by a plurality of at least 60,000.

In Tennessee the election of Patterson, Democrat, is claimed by a majority of 18,000.

Illinois went Republican by 120,000; Chicago alone gave 50,000 Republican majority.

In Missouri the Democrats seem to have won, but St. Louis gave a large Republican majority.

Nevada went Democratic by 1,000. The Legislature will be close, but a Republican Senator will be elected.

California went Republican by 15,000. A solid delegation to Congress was elected.

New Jersey elected a Republican Legislature, but the Democrats elected four Congressmen.

In Maryland the Republicans elected half the members in Congress and carried the Supreme Court.

With the count still going on, the result so far shows the election of 223 Republican Congressmen, 163

Democrats. There are 386 seats to be filled in the house. This will give 60 Republican majority.

Kentucky's delegation to the Sixtieth National Congress will be as follows:

First district—Ollie James, (Dem.)

Second district—Owsley Stanley, (Dem.)

Third district—A. D. James, (Rep.)

Fourth district—Ben Johnson, (Dem.)

Fifth district—Swager Sherley, (Dem.)

Sixth district—Rinock, (Dem.)

Seventh district—Preston Kimball, (Dem.)

Eighth district—Harvey Helm, (Dem.)

Ninth district—J. B. Bennett, (Rep.)

Tenth district—John W. Langley, (Rep.)

Eleventh district—D. C. Edwards, (Rep.)

This is a gain of two Republican Congressmen from the Blue Grass State. It's now in order for the Kentucky Legislature to gerrymander the districts some more.

Below we give the official vote of Ohio county, by precincts. It will be noted that there was scarcely half vote polled in the county, by either party, the Democrats turning out better than Republicans, because of the primary election, in which considerable money was used. The stock law carried in all the precincts in which the question was submitted, viz: West Hartford, Cromwell, Shreve and Cool Springs.

LANDED IN JAIL

Did Sim Helm for Misconduct At Whitesville—Brother Out On Bond.

(Owensboro Inquirer.)

Sim Helm is in the county jail as the result of desperate doings at Whitesville on last Saturday, and his brother, Leslie, who was in trouble with him, is out on bond. They were arrested and brought to the city and placed in jail. Justice Rodman accepted the bail offered for Leslie, but would not take the same which was offered for Sim. The brothers got drunk and went about the town attacking and alarming those whom they could encounter. They even went to the home of Miss Katie Neel, who was ill of typhoid fever, and frightened her so badly that she left her bed and ran to a neighbor's home.

They first attacked John Howard, a grave digger, and his wife, but were repulsed, after having injured Mrs. Howard. Howard and his wife used a spade and a hoe in repelling the Helms. Shortly after the attack on Howard and his wife, the Helms set upon a boy named Knight and severely injured him.

THE DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY

Shortage of Ballots in Hays and McCreary Territory.

No Challengers or Inspectors For Anti-Machine Conditions in Many Places.

THE WHOLE THING ROTTEN.

The scheme of the machine to defeat Attorney General Hays for the democrat nomination for Governor was made apparent to-day when complaints began to come in about the shortage of ballots for the primary in the country districts. (News item Monday afternoon Louisville paper).

In Ohio county by some "hoes pocus," the precinct at Centertown was furnished with 60 ballots when it had 125 Democrats who were liable to want to participate in the primary. Local headquarters were conferred with and 65 more ballots were dispatched to the place. The precinct went well for Beckham.

A Monday's dispatch from Russellville says: Democrats were thunderstruck this morning by the unexpected announcement by County Chairman Pottinger that they had made thirty-four changes in the list of primary election officers early to-day, twenty-four hours before the election. This change was not known or suspected by the McCreary and Hays managers until this morning, and their followers are indignant.

Chairman Pottinger is an intense Beckham, Hays supporter, and when the McCreary and Hays managers called on him this morning with their lists of challengers and inspectors and asked him to sign their credentials, they were told such could not be done and would not be done.

Attorney General Hays, who thought he was a candidate for the nomination for Governor, made allegations in the city court at Louisville that he was reliably informed that a conspiracy and deal had been formed to steal the primary from him and made a motion that the presiding judge of city court hold a continuous session on election day so that warrants could hastily be procured for election offenders, but the court being a part of Beckham-Hager machine refused.

Over a thousand McCreary voters were disfranchised in Lexington and Fayette county. No ballots being furnished in some precincts and in some voters were driven from polls by police.

In Corbin, Ky., not more than half enough ballots were furnished and by eleven o'clock they were exhausted.

In Covington Hays precincts were short of ballots and in several other anti-machine precincts the officers did not arrive until 7 o'clock and hundreds of voters got tired of waiting and left without voting.

Several officers of the primary were arrested in Louisville charged with interfering with votes and fraudulently receiving voters, also refusing persons entitled to vote and making false election counts.

A Harrodsburg dispatch says: The Shaker Bend ballot box and ballots were stolen from Taylor's saloon. It was in charge of F. A. McCabe, a Beckhamite. McCreary men claim that the opposition are at the bottom of the steal because it is a strong McCreary precinct. The Beckham people strongly deny the charge. McCabe left the box in the Saloon till he got ready to go home. The theft created great excitement, and some times it looked as if serious trouble was inevitable. Shaker Bend is the biggest Democratic precinct in the county.

Richmond, Ky., Nov. 7.—Senator James B. McCreary at noon to-day made a statement in which he said: "I have returns from seventy-three counties in the State. These counties give me a majority over Beckham of about 11,000. In the counties yet to be heard from I expect to break even with him, but when fraud is participated in and money used, as has been in this election, no one may know what to expect."

Returns received up to noon yesterday indicate that Gov. Beckham has defeated Senator McCreary in the state primary for United States Senator by a majority ranging from 3,000 to 7,000. On the face of the returns so far received Hager has a substantial lead estimated at 15,000.

Mr. Newman for commissioner of Agriculture, has a small lead over Mr. Crenshaw, while Gullon leads Winfrey by 5,000 for Superintendent of public instruction. For Attorney General Mr. Hendricks leads by a majority of 16,000 although the returns are not all in.

The rest of the ticket nominated is as follows: For Lieutenant Governor, South Trimble. For Auditor, H. M. Bosworth. For Secretary of State, Hubert Vreeland. For Treasurer, Ruby Lafoon. For Clerk of Court of Appeals, Jno. B. Chenault.

Senator McCreary has gone back to Louisville and says he is there to make investigations. He cites many instances of incorrect reports of the vote which does not credit him with hundreds of votes he received. Some of his managers say they have proof of fraud in many counties, especially in the mountain section of the State where Beckham swept everything by overwhelming majorities, his majority in many instances exceeding the Democratic vote in the presidential election two years ago.

While Senator McCreary would not discuss the probability of a contest in case the certificate of nomination is given to Beckham, one of the Senator's closest political friends said that the fight had only just begun.

Even if Beckham is giving the certificate of nomination, there are many, even among Democrats, who believe that he will never be elected Senator. The hand of the machine was too apparent in the campaign, and there is no disputing the fact that McCreary was run over in many counties denominated by henchmen of the machine.

ESCAPE FROM PRISON

Attempted by Convicts in Frankfort, Kentucky, Penitentiary.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 5.—State prison officials, this afternoon, unearthed a plot among a half dozen or more prisoners, through which one or two escapes have recently been effected and others planned.

Will Gill, a Boyd county prisoner, disappeared to-day at noon from the dining room of the institution, and a thorough search failed to reveal his whereabouts. One of his fellow workers in the dining-room was "sweated" and led the officials to the sand-room of the chair shop, where Gill was dug out from under the floor. He had secreted himself with a view of making his escape after night. The convict who told of the plot gave the names of several desperate prisoners as being implicated. All were put in irons and solitary confinement.

The officials consider themselves lucky in locating the plotters just at this time, as they might have a break while new men are serving as guards, while the regular men are away at home to vote, as is the custom at every election.

Found Dead in Corn Crib.

Morgantown, Ky., Nov. 5.—Burdette Rone, a prominent farmer of this county, was found dead in his corn crib this afternoon. He had gone to the crib after feed for his horses and did not return. When found he was lying on his face in the corn and seemed to have been dead several hours. Death was due to apoplexy.

HERMAN MAUZY

Shot to Death by a Negro in Mississippi.

His Father Goes to Scene of Tragedy, And as Yet No Details.

Last Monday our fellow townsman Mr. W. H. Mauzy, was notified by telegram from Bulah, Miss., of the killing of his son, Herman Mauzy at that place by a negro, and that his body was so mutilated by the gunshot wounds that it could not be shipped home. Mr. Mauzy left for the place as soon as he could get a train and as yet no word has been received giving any account of the affair.

Young Mauzy, who was only about 22 years of age, had been at work at a saw mill with Louis Chapman also an Ohio county boy for several months, and it had only been a short time since his people had received a letter, which indicated that he was doing well.

Mr. Wm. Mauzy, the boy's father is one of Hartfords most prominent citizens, with a host of friends, who are in deep sympathy with him in his hour of distress.

College Notes.

Mr. Cecil Park, a former non-resident student, entered school Monday.

Miss Margaret Reid, of Rockport, was among those who entered school Monday.

Examinations for the first quarter are over and the teachers are very busy grading papers and making out report cards. The report cards will be handed out Monday.

Mr. Tom Hamilton has been compelled to drop out of school on account of being needed at home. He reports that he will be back by Christmas or sooner. We are very sorry to give him up, even for a short while.

Monday was the beginning of the second quarter of this school year. Renewed zeal on the part of both teachers and pupils is being manifested.

Messrs. Owen Brown and Scott Ambrose were among the boys who went home to vote.

The teachers in all departments are looking forward to Thanksgiving, when literary exercises will probably be held.

The Adelpian Society held a very interesting meeting last Friday evening. The following new officers were elected: C. R. Bennett, President; R. W. Tinsley, Vice President; Owen Brown, Treasurer; J. Ney Foster, Secretary; O. C. Martin, Sergeant-at-arms; Connor Ford, was appointed Critic; Allison Barnett, Isaac Christian and J. Ney Foster were appointed as a program committee. The appointment of a finance and membership committee was laid over until a later date.

Some warm debates are promised by the boys in the near future.

WASHINGTON BREVITES.

News From The Nation's Capital Told in Crisp Sparkling Paragraphs.

(Special to THE REPUBLICAN.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 7.—There is a good deal of speculation in Washington as to Secretary Taft's real reason for refusing a place on the Supreme Bench. He could hardly be a consistent candidate for the presidential nomination against Mr. Roosevelt, yet that he has some definite purpose in mind by the refusal of the place is well known.

Mr. Roosevelt has made a record for breaking and making precedents and when he goes out of the Canal Zone a mile and a half to attend the reception planned for him by President Amador, of Panama, he will be the first President of the United States to set feet on foreign soil during his term of office.

The formation of the "people's Lobby" recently at Washington by a number of political reforms of the various parties with the avowed purpose of keeping tab on the stand taken by congressmen on various issues, and making public the same, has caused some particular congressmen to sit up and take notice.

The reports that a German firm sent a pair of storks to President Roosevelt as a token of its endorsement of his well-known views on the subject of race suicide, has been taken seriously by many, and a number of visitors who called at the White House to see the birds have been disappointed.

Secretary Metcalf of the Department of commerce and Labor predicts, that the total immigration to the United States this year will be 1,400,000 people, 77 per cent. of whom will enter the country by way of New York.

The administration should be deeply concerned at the anti-American feeling prevalent in Japan at the present time. If this feeling should grow to any extent it would work untold harm to commercial power and prestige that the United States has built up in Japan.

A MODERN GREEK TRAGEDY

Albanian Villager Whose Suit was Rejected, Takes Revenge on Girl.

A drama which illustrates the wilder aspects of life in modern Greece has just reached its last chapter. The scene of it is the village of Medini, which lies about ten miles north of Athens at the foot of the Parnes Mountains, and the people are of the Albanian race and preserve a number of old traditions and customs which even to-day have an almost religious force.

One of the most remarkable superstitions is that of the relation between a young girl's veil and her honor. The peasant girls all wear a veil, not the yashmak of the Turk, but a head covering, something like that which Italian peasant women wear, and popular opinion holds a girl dishonored if a man steals that head dress away from her. The only efficient way to re-establish her reputation is to have their veil robber marry her.

Three years ago a young man of the village, named Michas, began paying attentions to a young girl named Stavroula. His approaches were not favorably received. He lay in wait for her one evening, when she went to draw water at the well, snatched her veil from her head and disappeared in the twilight.

Now the tables were turned. All the relatives of Stavroula began paying their addresses to Michas. But now it was his turn to be coy. He would not marry Stavroula. He would not even return the stolen veil and so make a minor reparation for the injury he had done her.

He began, however, to force his attentions on her at such times as he could find her unprotected, and at last he made a forcible attempt to carry her off to the mountain. A village gendarme arrived in time to save the girl, but was himself shot down by Michas. Michas was arrested and condemned to a short term of imprisonment.

Returning to Mendini about two months ago, Michas found Stavroula betrothed to another man. He lay in wait for her. When she appeared she was accompanied by three women and two men.

He opened fire from his place of concealment and did not stop until he had mortally wounded every one of the six. Then, dashing out to the road, he imprinted a kiss on the lips of Stavroula, who was already in the throes of death, and at the same instant drove his dagger through her heart. Then he disappeared.

The Government promptly offered a reward of 5,000 drachms (about $1,000) for the arrest of the murderer. All the police and gendarmes in the kingdom were busy searching for him for a month, but not a trace of him was found. The crime was drifting into oblivion, when suddenly, a cousin of Michas went to the authorities and offered to betray him.

In order to reach the guilty man a stratagem had to be used. Two soldiers dressed themselves as tramps and, steered by the cousin, scraped up an acquaintance with him as if by accident.

After a while they proposed to him that they all three should go to America together. In this way they got him to a place near Athens, and there, under pretense of celebrating their departure, they made him half drunk.

The two then fell upon him. Michas fought like a wild beast and inflicted serious injury on both of his assailants. They succeeded, however, in holding him and in doing him up in a neat package with ropes so that he could be carried off to prison without further trouble.

He is there now awaiting trial and sentence. It is expected that the Government will exact full value for its drachms and that the career of Michas will soon be brought to a close.

Sending Christmas Presents by Mail.

The approach of the Christmas season brings anything but pleasant anticipations to the railway mail clerks who handle the thousands of presents sent through the mails. Their labors are greatly increased by the imperfect manner in which a large percentage of the package are put up, in many cases being so poorly tried that they come apart long before they reach their destination.

Speaking of it the other day, a mail clerk said if people would take the trouble to put the article in a box it would save a great deal of unnecessary worry and labor at a time when the clerks are badly overworked, and the present would reach the person for whom it is intended in much better shape than it usually does. A shoe or a corset box or a breakfast food carton makes a package of convenient size for handling in the mails. Glass, china or fragile articles of any description should be packed in wooden boxes.

Packages should be securely tied and plainly marked with the address of the sender in the upper left hand corner. Postage should be fully prepaid 1 cent for two ounces for merchandise and 1 cent for two ounces on printed matter, including books, photographs, pictures, etc.

SEEN IN DREAMS.

Three People in Widely Separated Parts of the Country Prophesied Wreck.

The Louisville & Nashville railroad disaster at Clarksville, Tenn., a few weeks ago, when the engine, mail and baggage cars plunged into the river through an open bridge, was foretold in dreams. A few nights previous to the disaster Mrs. E. A. Gerhart had a dream, in which she plainly saw the catastrophe, the leap of the locomotive and the men struggling for life in the swirling waters. The dream was so horrifying that it greatly disturbed her sleep.

Mrs. Dohrm, formerly of Clarksville, now a resident of Covington, saw in a dream, the night it happened, the same calamity and was so disturbed that she could not sleep. She told her dream the next morning and was greatly exercised to hear from home, and had no rest until the paper reached her recording the scene just as it had appeared to her in the dream.

Still another, Edgar Fox, a Clarksville boy, now living at Kerrville, Texas, had a premonition of the affair and was so alarmed that he wrote home immediately, describing his feelings and asking for an immediate answer as to what calamity had occurred in Clarksville.

Married Men Better Kissers.
Does a married man know how to kiss better than a single man? Can you tell a married man by the way he kisses?

These two questions were answered recently by Mrs. Kathryn Doelle the pretty 32-year-old widow, of No. 340 North Central Avenue, Chicago, who is suing Frank E. Dooling, a Springfield politician, for $800, which she claims she lent him, and for kisses which she confesses, blushing, she gave him out right.

"Few single men know how to kiss," declared the pretty widow. "I should have known Mr. Dooling was married by the way he kissed me. Married men know how to kiss better than single men. Their kisses are longer and more heartfelt."

The Last One.
(Harpers Weekly.)

The bishop of Winchester was once traveling through Banbury by rail, and, wishing to try their celebrated cakes, summoned a boy and asked him to procure him one. Learning that their price was "three-pence," the bishop gave the lad a "sixpence," telling him, "and with the other three-pence buy a cake for yourself." The lad shortly returned complacently munching his cake and handing three-pence back to the bishop, exclaimed: "There was only one left, gov'nor."

REMARKABLE.

New-born Baby Abandoned by Its Mother Lays 48 Hours in Cornfield.

A story from the Bearwallow country, which has just reached here, reveals one of the most remarkable instances of tenacity of life ever heard of, says the Glasgow Times.

A week ago last Thursday night Rosa Hamilton, a white girl employed as a domestic in the family of Mr. John Whithall, left home in the night, went about half a mile to a cornfield, where she gave birth to a child, which she wrapped in a comfort and left concealed in the fence corner.

After giving birth to the child the woman walked nearly two miles to the home of Mr. John Bragg, a kinsman, carrying a large valise full of clothes. She reached Mr. Bragg's some time Friday morning and soon became so ill that a doctor was sent for. When the doctor arrived he discovered what was the matter and gave the woman the attention she should have had twelve hours before. When asked what had become of the child the woman said it was born dead and that she had left it in the cornfield.

Magistrate P. L. Terry was notified and on Saturday morning empaneled a jury to hold an inquest over the child. The jury visited the spot where the woman said she had left the child and found the little body wrapped in a comfort with one of the baby's arms sticking out and blue from the effects of the severe cold of the two nights it had lain there. Upon unwrapping the comfort from the child, however, the youngster gave a yell that startled the magistrate and jurors and began to cry as lustily as the strongest child ever born.

A Plucky Policeman.

Policeman Jacob Farra, of West Chester, Pa., who has the reputation of being afraid of no dog, last week attacked a dog which was apparently mad, dragged it from a porch and shot it. The dog was on the porch of W. R. Ottey and had chewed the legs off a rocking chair when the policeman arrived. He did not hesitate, but grasped the animal by the tail, threw it over the fence and then shot it in the alley.

Insurance Department of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Aug. 13th, 1906.
Whereas, The National Life Insurance Company, located at Montpelier, Vt., is possessed of the actual capital required under the laws of this Commonwealth, and has complied with all the requirements of said laws which are applicable to Life Insurance Companies incorporated by or doing business in other States of the United States:

Now therefore, I, Henry R. Prewitt, Insurance Commissioner for the State of Kentucky, in pursuance of the authority vested in me by the laws of this Commonwealth, do hereby certify that C. M. Barnett and C. E. Smith, of Hartford, in the County of Ohio, are authorized as Agents of the aforesaid Company to transact the business of Insurance for one year from Aug. 1, 1906, in this State, as provided by the laws thereof.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name, and caused my official Seal to be affixed on the day and year first above written.

Around the Reading Tables.

Is it true in your home that the center of all things seems to be the reading table? You can find mother and sister in the kitchen during most of the day, but in the evening when the family gathers for a brief period of recreation after the day's work is done, the spot is the table by the fireside, where books, papers, magazines and letters lie scattered about the bright lamp. There father finds his business magazines, his farm papers; mother her business magazines her household papers; and the children, amusing, entertaining, and at the same time instructive, books and papers. Yes, it costs something to provide these things. But as was once said, "no home should be without its Bible it Shakespeare," we now know that, in this age of books, and publications, printing and reading, no American can afford to be without at least a few up-to-date periodicals, wisely chosen. They furnish food for thought for conversation; they are a bond of interest between the entire family. They do more than one may at first realize toward keeping intact the family circle around the reading table.

HUSBAND AND WIFE

Can Not Both Hold Jobs in The Government Service.

President Roosevelt has decided to eject from the Government service the husband of wife where both are employed. He has called upon the civil service commission for a list of names of such employees. When this list has been furnished, under direction of the President the husband and wife who are both upon Uncle Sam's pay roll will be given an opportunity to decide which shall resign. If no agreement is reached one or the other will be dismissed.

The president will interpose no objection to the employment of a woman whose husband are living but are not in the Government service, nor will he attempt to regulate the number of members of any family who shall be given Government employment further than to make it impossible for both the husband and wife to remain upon the pay rolls.

It is estimated that in Washington alone there are at least 100 cases where both husband and wife are in the government service. In some instances the marital relations are secret and the wife appears upon the pay rolls under her maiden name.

Owl and Chick in One.

Mrs. Ellen Elliott, of Rockdale, Pa., is the possessor of a freak chicken, which was hatched a few days ago. The fowl is half chicken, half owl, and shows little signs of life, except at night, when it makes a peculiar, incessant howl. It has the owl's curved head and hooked beak; also the large, strange eyes. When the chick walks its feet overlap each other, as if walking a chalk line.

No Call to Watch His.

(The Bits.)
An engineer from Sundaland was spending a few days in London with a friend, and after a busy morning sight seeing the Londoner chose a large restaurant for luncheon, thinking it would be a novel experience for the man from the north. The visitor appeared to enjoy his luncheon, but kept looking in the direction of the door. "What are you watching?" asked his friend, rather annoyed.

"Well," was the quiet reply. "A's keepin' an eye on me topcoat." "Oh, don't bother about that," said the other; "you don't see me watching mine." "No," observed the guileless engineer; "thee has no call to—its ten minutes sin' thine went."

BUSINESS COLLEGES ARE FAILURES

In small cities and towns, because:

1. There is not a sufficient population to support a GOOD school.
2. Such schools are usually conducted by persons who are NOT qualified, or who make it a practice to travel about and defraud their patrons.
3. There are few if any opportunities for their graduates to secure employment in such localities.
4. The THOROUGH business colleges are located in the larger cities and are conducted by persons who are qualified.
5. The graduates of business colleges in small cities or towns can not secure employment in large cities when thrown in competition with the THOROUGH graduates of high-class schools, as business men have no time to experiment with incompetents.

Therefore, be wise. Send for the finest catalogue ever issued by a commercial school, before deciding to throw away your money for a worthless training at some cheap school.

DEATH ENDS VARIED LIFE.

Charles Kincaid's Endeavors Not Confined by the Atlantic.

(Cincinnati Times Star.)
To few men does it fall the fortune to live so varied a life as was the lot of Charles E. Kincaid, who died early Friday morning in the private ward of the city hospital. Lawyer, jurist, journalist, and diplomat—in each he won renown. He was highly cultured and his gentleness of manner marked him as a man of refinement.

Judge Kincaid was born in Danville, Ky., in 1855; graduated from college, was admitted to the bar and then became the editor of a county paper. He served as a country judge, became a State railroad commissioner and was a member of the staff of the Louisville Courier-Journal. He was secretary to Gov. Knott who selected him to arrange for the removal of the body of the sculptor, Joel Hart, from Florence, Italy, to Frankfort. He was private secretary to United States Senator Williams and then was Washington correspondent of a number of newspapers. He was consular agent at an English city, then clerk to the House Committee on Claims and a revenue officer until about ten years ago, when he became a member of the Cincinnati Enquirer staff.

There was one incident in his life which, while courts and public opinion justified him, seemed to sadden his life. While he was representing the Louisville Times at Washington, he wrote something that concerned Congressman Taulbee, then representing the Tenth district of Kentucky. Taulbee, in a speech in the House, denouncing Kincaid, said he would thrash him on sight. Soon afterward they met on the steps of the Capitol. Taulbee was a man of immense stature; Kincaid was small and of little physical powers. Kincaid, when he saw Taulbee approaching, and remembering his threat, drew a revolver and shot Taulbee dead. Kincaid was tried and acquitted.

A Lesson On The Cow.

In one of the modern schools a first grade teacher was having a lesson on the cow. She was trying to impress on the young minds the various uses of milk. Butter and cheese had been disposed of and she wanted some bright genius to tell how the farmer fed the surplus milk to the pig. Leading up to this she asked: "Now, children, after the farmer has made all the butter and cheese he needs and uses what milk he wants for his family, what does he do with the milk that still remains?" Dead silence followed for a moment and then one little hand waved frantically. The teacher smiled and said: "Well, Jim." "He pours it back into the cow!" piped James.

Mrs. Craigie's Wit.

The late Mrs. Craigie, the noted novelist, was invited to address a meeting whilst in New York City last year. She accepted the invitation, but her name though some oversight, and was put far down on the programme, and, worse than that the chairman, a rather stupid person, introduced before her some speakers who were not on the programme at all. In short, it was close on to 11 o'clock when the chairman with a pleasant smile, bowed and said: "Mrs. Craigie the eminent author, will now give us her address." Mrs. Craigie rose and said, calmly: "My address is No. 56 Lancaster Gate, Hyde Park, W. London, and I now wish you all good-night, for I am far from home."

TOBACCO GROWERS.

Headquarters National Association at Owensboro.

Secretary will open offices in the Midst of the Green River Tobacco District.

The Owensboro Inquirer says:

On November 8, Owensboro becomes the headquarters of the National Tobacco Growers' Association, a branch of the American Society of Equity, because on that date, Mr. C. Hays Taylor, Secretary of the National Tobacco Growers' Association, will move his headquarters to Owensboro.

There have been publications heretofore to the effect that such a movement was contemplated, but it has not, until the present, been officially announced.

The provision made for paying the salary of the secretary does not provide a fund that will be due before the assessment is made and paid on the 1906 crop, and friends of the organization in Owensboro who are interested in seeing the headquarters moved to this city have made arrangements to see that the salary of the secretary is paid until the fund for that purpose is available.

Mr. Taylor was employed by the National A. S. of E. and his salary came through the national body, hence the time required to look after the affairs of the whole society did not give Mr. Taylor the time needed to look after the interests of the tobacco growers.

It is complimentary to the Green River district of the tobacco growers which is the most active district in the organization. It is the heart of the dark tobacco belt, and Owensboro is naturally the chief tobacco center of the belt. The Green River district is the most thoroughly organized of any district, as was clearly shown at the meeting of the National Tobacco Growers' Association at Clarksville, Tenn., last month.

Postmaster Robbed.

G. W. Fouts, Postmaster at River-ton, Ia., nearly lost his life and was robbed of all comfort, according to his letter, which says: "For 20 years I had chronic liver complaint, which led to such a severe case of jaundice that even my finger nails turned yellow; when my doctor prescribed Electric Bitters, which cured me and have kept me well for eleven years." Sure cure for Biliousness, Neuralgia, Weakness and All Stomach, Liver, Kidney and Bladder derangements. A wonderful Tonic. At Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro's. Drug store. 50 cents.

Living Fish in Baby's Stomach.

A living object, which resembles a young catfish, the exact identity of which is to be determined by microscopic examination, lived evidently for some days in the stomach of Edward McNally, 9-months-old son of Mrs. Bessie McNally of 1451 Covington street, Baltimore, and was expelled during the violent vomiting spells.

The baby was under treatment at the Wilson sanitarium for what was diagnosed as dyspepsia disorder, but the usual remedies failed to bring relief. Several days ago the object was ejected during a severe spell of vomiting. It was alive and lived for some time. An examination indicated that it was a fully developed catfish. Two distinctly formed "feelers" protruding from the head, and the wide rounded mouth of the catfish, with a white skin underneath, were the marks of identification. It is believed that the child swallowed the supposed fish while drinking water.

Where Slang Was Needed.

It was a language lesson, and the teacher in one of the city schools had considerable trouble in making the boys understand the use of the word "acceptance." He tried several words, calling upon his bright boys, but their explanation always left a feeling of uncertainty among other members of the class.

It was quite clear, relates the New York Press, that this word does

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse because of the uncertainty as to their harmless character, but is a medicine of known composition, a full list of all its ingredients being printed in plain English on every bottle wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its makeup. The "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is in fact the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, sold through druggists, that does not contain alcohol and that too in large quantities. Furthermore, it is the only medicine for woman's special diseases, the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of some of these endorsements will be sent to any address, postpaid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Don't forget that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for woman's weaknesses and delicate ailments, is not a patent or secret medicine, being the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated and graduated physician, engaged in the practice of his chosen specialty—that of diseases of women—that its ingredients are printed in plain English on every bottle wrapper; that it is the only medicine especially designed for the cure of woman's diseases that contains no alcohol, and the only one that has a professional endorsement worth more than all the so-called "testimonials" ever published for other medicines. Send for these endorsements as above. They are free for the asking.

If you suffer from periodical headache, backache, dizziness, pain or dragging down sensation low down in the abdomen, weak back, have disagreeable and weak- ing, catarrhal, pelvic drain, or are in distress from being long on your feet, then you may be sure of benefit from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

not form a part of an ordinary boy's vocabulary, and to have it understood it must be related to a word which does belong there. Here was the psychological moment to use slang.

"Boys," said the teacher, "What is the general acceptance of 'twenty-three'?"

"Skiddoo!" was the prompt answer by the whole class. The meaning of the word became clear at once.

The best treatment for indigestion and troubles of the stomach is to rest the stomach. It can be rested by starvation or by use of a good digestant which will digest the food eaten, thus taking the work off the stomach. At the proper temperature, a single teaspoonful of Kodol will wholly digest 3,000 grains of food. It will relieve the present annoyance, puts the stomach in shape to satisfactorily perform its functions. Good for indigestion, sour stomach, flatulence, palpitation of the heart and dyspepsia. "Nu Spelling" Not New, After All.

[From Joe Chapple's visit to "A Shrine of Knowledge," in National Magazine for November.]

While I tarried in Springfield the other day, one of those good intentions I have had in mind for several years came to the front and demanded attention. Where is the person a school boy or girl of the past or present, who does not remember the old, leather-bound dictionary? There it lay on the teacher's desk, the veritable and basic cornerstone for all learning, and there it remained as the court of last appeal, even from the all-sufficient knowledge that the scholars generally supposed was possessed by the teacher.

An interesting fact was brought out in connection with a reference made to the president's proclamation regarding simplified spelling and the pamphlet sent out by the government printing office. Few people are aware that nearly all the matter contained in that little booklet is already to be found in Webster. It may truly be said that a dictionary is a record of the people's verdict and the scholar's conclusion as to the inevitable laws of advancement, rather than an arbitrary manifesto of what shall be said or written; and it remains with the people whether the "nu spelling" shall go down as a record or not. Even the most radical advance and change in spelling and pronunciation seems to be intuitively anticipated by the editors of Webster's Dictionary.

The Unknown.

A proud young father telegraphed the news of his happiness to his brother in these words: "A handsome boy has come to my house and claims to be your nephew. We are doing our best to give him a proper welcome." The brother, however, failed to see the point, and replied: "I have not got a nephew. The young man is an impostor."

BODY EATEN BY HOG.

Flem Payne, Killed by Lightning and Body Devoured by Hogs and Dogs.

[Glasgow Times.]

Flem Payne, a white man fifty years old, who lived three miles from Fountain Run on the road to Glasgow was killed by lightning while seeking shelter under a tree in a field near his home four weeks ago, and his body lay four weeks where he fell until it was finally devoured by hogs and dogs.

Payne left home four weeks ago, telling his family he was going to Warren county. He was a poor man and started to walk through the fields. Shortly after he left home a storm came up and he sought shelter under a tree which was struck by lightning and Payne was killed. He was not missed by his family and neighbors, as he was believed to be in Warren county.

Last Friday, however, a neighbor's dog came home with a man's shoe containing a man's foot, and a search was instituted which resulted in finding the half-devoured body of Payne scattered over the neighbor's field. The arm and legs torn off and the flesh eaten by the dogs and all the flesh was gone from the face.

The watch of the dead man, together with $2.55 in cash which had been paid him just before he left, along with some letters found scattered about, completed the identification.

Payne was a widower, with six children, most of them married, and made his home with first one and then another of them, which also accounts for the fact that search was not made for him.

Underground Waters of Western Kentucky.

A valuable and interesting discussion of the underground water resources of Kentucky west of the Tennessee river, is contained in Water Supply and Irrigation Paper, No. 164, just issued by the United States Geological Survey. The investigations made by the Hydrographic branch of the Geological Survey show that in Western Kentucky the underground water resources are largely dependent on the local rainfall. The springs and shallow wells derive their supplies exclusively from the rain falling in their vicinity, while the rocks from which the deep wells obtain waters are supplied by the rain that falls within the State or in the area just Impoverished soil, like impoverished blood, needs a proper fertilizer. A chemist by analyzing the soil can tell you what fertilizer to use for different products.

Impoverished Soil

If your blood is impoverished your doctor will tell you what you need to fertilize it and give it the rich, red corpuscles that are lacking in it. It may be you need a tonic, but more likely you need a concentrated fat food, and fat is the element lacking in your system.

There is no fat food that is so easily digested and assimilated as west of the Mississippi river. In only a few cases do deep wells pierce the hard rocks that lie beneath the soft sands and clays.

It will nourish and strengthen the body when milk and cream fail to do it. Scott's Emulsion is always the same; always palatable and always beneficial where the body is wasting from any cause, either in children or adults.

In Water Supply Paper No. 164, which may be obtained on application to the Director of the United States Geological Survey at Washington, D. C., are discussed, the general conditions that govern the occurrence of water in wells and the relation of the geology of the region to the supply of underground water. These general discussions are followed by detailed descriptions that show the water conditions in each county, the depth at which water may be obtained, and the height to which it rises without pumping.

"From Georgia, of Course!"

Georgia people are especially popular with New York street car conductors, according to the Sun of that city.

"The reason why?" said one conductor. "Because they're the kind that stop and pay their car-fare at the door. Every little while some big man in a long coat and a slouch hat stops and hands out his nickel before going into the car."

"Save you the trouble of comin' in after it," he says.

"Now, that's what I call treating a fellow white. I couldn't make out at first where all those considerate passengers were brought up. One day I asked."

"Georgia, of course," said the thoroughbred, surprised that I had had to ask.

"Since then, whenever a man hands out his car-fare at the door I tip my hat and say, 'From Georgia!'"

"Sure," says he, every time."

Bald Head Ruined Home.

In Chicago recently a bald head was made the basis of a plea for divorce in Judge Patton's court by George I. Meeker. The couple are from Jersey City, N. J., and Meeker told the court his wife left him in 1901.

"Why did she leave you?" asked Judge Patton. "Another man in the case?"

"Nope," responded Meeker, placing his hand on his bald head. "This was the cause of our trouble. You see, a year or so before my wife deserted me my hair began to fall out and finally I was almost completely bald. Well, Minnie wanted me to buy a wig, but I objected to wearing on and said so, and my wife then began nagging at me until we quarreled about it. She never was the same after that, and one day she quietly slipped out of our home and has never returned to me."

LOOKOUT for old Kentucky next year.

THERE will be no tinkering with the tariff.

LOOKS like Missouri only has to be shown once.

WHERE was Hearst, when the lights went out?

WHEREVER Bryan spoke, the Republicans made gains.

It looks like the whole country "stood pat," Tuesday.

CUBA wakes up with a headache, empty pockets and in debt.

THE Democratic State ticket is machine made from top to bottom.

ABOUT 1500 Republicans in Ohio county were too busy to vote Tuesday.

OHIO COUNTY cannot be put into the Democratic column, by a primary election.

NO DOUBT the workers on the Panama Canal will all be busy, when the President gets there.

If Japan is going to pick a quarrel with us, it will find Uncle Sam standing pat all over the Pacific Ocean.

NOW, LET the City Council get busy and fix up the streets of old Hartford, in keeping with her growth.

JAPAN may be a little hazy about the rights American citizens have, but she wants her subjects to have all of them.

MR. BRYAN was right in his fears that his boom was burning with such an intense light that it couldn't keep up the illumination.

KENTUCKY has the distinction of furnishing the only gain in the Congressional elections for the Republicans over the 1904 high water mark.

THE election of Dr. James to Congress from the third district is a severe rebuke to the Muhlenberg Argus. The abuse and misrepresentations of that paper no doubt made hundreds of votes for the doctor.

THE election of Harve Williams as Magistrate in this district was a great victory for the Republicans. The Democrats had confidently expected to win with Austin, as the district has been Democratic until last year.

Now, let the Republicans get together and see how much better timber they can offer the people for Kentucky, in the way of candidates for State officers. The ticket must be absolutely free from the taint of bossism and made up of men of high class standing.

If there had been no primary election in this county Tuesday, the Democrats would have fallen short of the vote they brought out at least 500, and Heavrin would have gotten 700 majority. The Republican vote, which came out, was practically voted without effort.

THE election of delegates to frame a constitution for the new State of Oklahoma resulted in the choice of a majority of Democrats, the Indians voting almost solidly for the Democratic nominees. It is safe to say that they will learn better as they grow more experienced in governmental affairs.

THE election of Dr. A. D. James to Congress, from the old bloody third, is a splendid triumph for one of the best Republicans Kentucky ever produced. He will make the Third district the best Representative it has ever had, and he is sure to keep it in the Republican column, unless the Democrats do some more gerrymandering.

"THE Hartford Herald glories in the fact that, having abused nor derided no candidate of Tuesday's State Primary, it can face the common enemy and fight Democracy's battle with vigor and interest."—[Hartford Herald.] The Herald evidently goes on the idea that there is no difference in rotten apples. This, however, is no deviation from its well beaten path, as it rarely ever takes any position on a public question.

A CORRECTION.

In our last issue we quoted Judge J. S. Glenn, in his speech, introducing Governor Beckham, as using the argument that the Democrats possessed the wealth and intelligence of Kentucky and, therefore, should govern. It seems that we were in error in this, as we learn from Judge Glenn that he not only did not make the statement, but that he does not endorse it. We are glad to make this correction, as this paper has no desire whatever to do any one an injustice. It was Governor Beckham who made use of this argument and also made slurring references to Governor Taylor.

FOR REORGANIZATION.

In commenting on the defeat of Maj. Owens in the Fifth district, Wednesday's Louisville Herald, contains some sound advice to the Republicans of Kentucky. There seems to be no doubt but what Owens might have been elected, with a competent organization back of him.

Of the Fifth district organization the Herald says: "The party welfare in this district is nothing more or less than a screaming farce. It is to laugh from nomination day to election day—and then some. We are ashamed to say it, but it is the simple truth that the Republican organization in this city, county and district, would be a discredit to the army of a Cooxey."

We know enough about the conditions in Louisville to vouch for every word the Herald has said. The party will never win a victory there until there is a change. Moreover, we endorse the following reference to the organization in the State: "The Herald is for the reorganization of the Republican party in this State. Its unswerving devotion to the cause of Republicanism will never be questioned. But, for God's sake, let's get together." During the Congressional campaign just closed, the State Chairman has been in Europe, and it is charged that his Secretary has spent most of his time looking after oil interests in Eastern Kentucky. Time after time, candidates for Congress, and those who were trying to aid them, have gone to headquarters and waited for hours for some one who could furnish needed information, the office only being occupied by a young lady stenographer, engaged in work for the oil company, to which the Secretary belongs.

When Secretary Shaw came to Kentucky to begin his tour in aid of our candidates, the State headquarters knew nothing about the train upon which he would arrive and had no arrangements for anyone to meet him.

It is perfectly apparent that the gains in the State this year have been made by "pure strength and awkwardness." With a competent, wideawake State organization, not telling what might have been accomplished, not only in the Fifth, but in other districts as well.

Officers Elected.

At the annual election of officers for the local Epworth League, Wednesday evening, the following selections were made: President, Miss Ida Lewis; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. J. R. Why Pay More

For your Overcoats, Boys' Clothing, Ladies, Misses and Children's Cloaks, Underwear, Shoes, Comforts and Blankets, Dry Goods, Dress Goods, Millinery, Etc., when you can save from 15c to 25 per cent. on every purchase by coming direct to Fairs? Our motto "More Goods for the Same Money," still holds. We invite comparison. Come to see us?

Dry Goods.

Why pay advance prices on your fall purchases of Flannels, Outings, Prints, Gingham, Jeans, Linseys, Oilcloths, Table Linens, Etc., when old prices are at Fairs?

Ladies Cloaks.

Why pay a big price for your Winter Wrap, when you can come to Fairs and buy the latest at $5, $8, $10 and $15?

Underwear.

Why pay other merchants $1 a suit for light-weight Underwear, when Fairs sells you extra heavy at $1?

Our Shoes.

Why pay high prices for cheap, trashy Shoes, when Fairs can give you good qualities for a small sum? Come to see us.

Millinery.

Why buy an out-of-date Hat, when you can get at Fairs just the Hat you want at such a low price? Everything new and tastefully trimmed.

Comforts and Blankets.

Why pay extravagant prices for these goods, when Fairs are selling them so cheap? Don't think of buying until you visit us. It will be money saved.

Overcoats.

Why pay $12 and $15 for Overcoats, when you can get the same from Fairs for $10?

Men's Suits.

Why pay $15 for Suits that Fairs sell you for $10.00?

To all economical housewives our Basement is a place of interest. The reasons for this are many. First, only the necessary things are found there. Second, you pay only 5c and 10c for goods that cost you 20c and 25c everywhere else. These two reasons should induce every lady to visit us. New things added every week.

Here is the cheapest good gun yet made. By the omission of the take down feature we have been able to greatly reduce the cost of production and at the same time have kept the gun up to the famous high Marlin standard of strength, safety and durability. Notice the clean simplicity of this gun. The workmanship and finish are perfect. The weight is only 7 pounds. The full choke barrels are especially bored for smokeless as well as black powder and so chambered that 2 3/4 inch or 2 1/2 inch shells may be used. Several improvements in the operating parts make it the easiest, most reliable and best working gun in existence. We are glad to make it possible for every lover of guns and bird shooting to get this high grade repeating shot gun at so low a price.

The Running of the Chute

BY NATHANIEL DICKENSON.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

It was with the bitterness of gall that her captain swung the Marcus Baldwin into the wharves of Blank City. Disappearing around the bend below were the twin stacks of the Queen of the River. On the wharf were evidences of her recent descent for freight, and the cleaned decks showed that he would not need the services of the half dozen lazing roustabouts to move. Of passengers, one, a shareholder in his owning company of the Marcus Baldwin.

Yes, the Marcus Baldwin had been fairly beaten. Tar, lard—even sugar—had fed the roaring fires of each steamer. But there had come a time when even tar and lard and sugar must be exhausted, and this had come first on the Marcus Baldwin.

To the passengers and crew this had been but a friendly race of boats of rival companies for merely commercial ends, with, perhaps, the spice of personal reputation of the respective captains, as an additional factor. To those captains it had meant infinitely more.

Three miles below this landing was the Chute and the locks through which the steamers were lowered past it. To the one first landing at Blankville, then, it meant first reaching the city, a mile below, owing to the long delay at the locks. At the city a certain young lady had said to these two young captains but a week before that he who first arrived on the return trip, he it should be who should receive—but here she had stopped and blushed and left the suitors to imagine what—which they did without difficulty. So had the uncertain maiden rid herself for the time of suitors of whom she could not make choice.

Upstream there had been no race at all, for the boats, being passenger carriers, were booked to arrive and leave on schedule days. So of the down trip until that last day. Then, with their destination within the hundred-mile mark and some half dozen landings to make, it had been touch and go; the Marcus Baldwin ahead at one landing, the Queen of the River, by some turn of the wheel, at the next. Then had come that last long stretch of some 20 miles, when the Marcus Baldwin, ahead at the last landing, had been overtaken at the crucial point by her rival and the dark featured De Witte had almost danced in his exultation as his boat crept by the other, while Banks had eaten his soul out in sullen silence at the failure of his vessel to respond even with a roustabout seated on her safety valve.

And now the race was as good as lost to him—and the girl. So, at least, he reasoned, with the Queen of the River as good as in the locks.

And he had given up hope as, her freight and solitary passenger aboard, the lines of the Marcus Baldwin were cast off and she gathered way out into the stream. Yet, the very fact that she was again in motion fanned the dying spark. Was there no hope? Had he left no stone unturned? The Queen of the River's engines might break down! What if, her engines disabled, the fresher current in the river should carry her through the Chute? Yet, boats had gone through that safely.

And with this thought Capt. Banks grew of a sudden quite dizzy, for what had been done might be done again, he reasoned. Ordinarily a good ten feet of water ran in the Chute. With the river at its present height he could fairly count on finding 15. For a width of 100 feet the Chute was clear of rocks, and the water ran in great oily seas. Yes, it was possible, yet the risk! A wrecked steamer, lives lost, maybe! But when a man loves as Banks did he throws cost to the wind.

A quarter of an hour later the Marcus Baldwin rounded the bend above the Chute. Below her lay the locks. Half way through these, Banks saw the tall stacks and upper structure of the Queen of the River, a half hour and she would be through them.

It needed but this to steady him in his growing resolve.

"Wilson," he said quietly to the pilot, "I will take the wheel now; you may go on how."

The old pilot looked at him in mild astonishment, but the captain was not one to give a command twice and Banks himself held a pilot's license. He released the wheel and descended to the deck from the pilot house.

With a six-mile current hurrying her on and her engines forcing her through it at a 12-knot clip, the Marcus Baldwin swept on. As she neared the Chute, Banks could see that the strong wind from the south had stirred this into a maelstrom of frothing waters. Yet, there was not time to turn now, even if he had so wished. On past the lock slip swept the steamer. For a moment it seemed she hesitated on the brink of the yawning Chute, passengers shrinking from her forward decks in horror, then she bowed majestically and plunged forward.

No one but the man at the wheel that day knew the extent of the dangers the Marcus Baldwin ran through. As the steamer plunged forward Banks realized that the freight had been so stowed in her hold as to make her down by the bows, thus lifting her stern in a way that made her sheer alarmingly. Before she had gone 100 yards she sheered herself halfway across the channel, listing horribly the while. With the energy of despair Banks spun the wheel to meet her. Her bow rose for the moment on a huge crested comber, and the rudder once more controlling, she shot back across the Chute, burying her stern to the lower deck and sending the spray clear over her. Again Banks met her erratic flight, but to have her zig-zag back across the storming current this time, missing the white hill of a spray-drowned rock by the width of her sheer.

This could not last. Again she rose for the charge. In the flash of a glance Banks saw the crowded decks of the rival steamer in the last of the locks as she drove by. Down plunged the bows of his own boat again, at an angle which nearly broached her, too, and in which passengers, crew and even captain thought her last moment had come in the shocking roar of waters and blinding spray. Then she rose, slowly at first, and then as a dog, shaking the water from her, and swept into the calm water below the rapids. Far astern, hopelessly out of the race, Banks saw the Queen of the River pulling out of the last of the locks.

And the captain's reward? A month later there was a wedding.

BOBBY KNEW IT WAS COMING.

Ma (about to apply the rod)—Now, Bobby, my boy— Bobby—Oh, spank away, ma, but don't give us that old thing about it hurting you more'n it hurts me.

OVERLOOKED.

"Can you tell me where I can find the colonel this morning? I have looked everywhere."

"Why, that's funny! I saw him in the barroom a moment ago."

"Why—I—er—I never looked there."

"Where did you look, in an ice-cream parlor?"—Houston Post.

IN SHOPPINGTOWN.

The beautiful girl stopped suddenly on the sidewalk. Both of her arms reached over her shoulders, while a queer expression came in her face.

"Well, did you ever! I wonder what is the matter with her?"

"Better not go too near. Maybe the heat has affected her mind."

"Poor thing! Maybe it is over-study."

"Land sakes! She might be one of these here anarchists."

"Bet she has been disappointed in love."

Suddenly the beautiful girl smiled.

"It's all right now," she said, sweetly.

"What's all right?" asked the crowd, breathless with suspense.

"Why, my waist. A button came loose in the back, and I had such an awful time reaching it. But it's all right now."

And then the crowd melted away like ice cream in a summer sun.

Do You Know

Joe Chapple and his National Magazine

There will be doings in Washington this winter, and I want to write you about them. For five years I have been in elbow touch with prominent men in public affairs and take a keen interest in writing all about them. Now permit me to send you twelve letters this year—"Snap Shots"—per pictures of public men. The National has 120 pages of bright stories and illustrated articles from others who write authoritatively on things of to-day and to-morrow. Do you know tells the story? Come with me this winter to the White House during the receptions and functions, to the executive offices and various other departments of the government. Come with me to the Capitol on the hill and learn about matters of vital interest to every American. If you knew how much pleasure these things afford one, you would understand how we have already secured a quarter-million regular subscribers. The foremost Americans write for, and read the National Magazine. Each number contains new and interesting portraits and personal sketches of men and women prominent in public affairs. High grade novels head the National's 1906 Fiction List—stories that breathe the spirit of to-day. The Home Department's "Little Helps" are rapidly becoming famous for their boiled-down, common-sense usefulness to house-keepers. Charles Warren Stoddard, in Literary Affairs; Dallas Lore Sharpe, on Nature Study; Robert Edgren, on Sports; Poulney Bigelow, on Foreign Affairs; Frank Putnam, on American Politics; Senators Allison, Procter and Bailey, Vice-President Fairbanks, Congressman Cooper, McCleary,—and many other prominent men are among the contributors of the National Magazine for 1906. Send on your subscription, $1.00 for the year. The National Magazine is not included in any periodical combination—it stands alone.

The National Magazine

The "Heart Throb" Book

LAST year we advertised for "Heart Throb" contributions. All sorts of clippings that had appealed to the people were sent to us. We wanted to know what makes sunny days enduring and dark days endurable. We paid in cash $10,000 in 840 prize awards. These contributions now printed in book form, over 400 pages, are the favorite gems of President Roosevelt, the late Secretary Hay, Speaker Cannon, and other celebrities; also thousands of selections from new subscribers. The awards were made by Admiral Dewey and Senator Allison. This book is unique; a rare volume—just the thing for a friendship gift. In addition to the other attractions in this volume, the last 32 pages are left blank, arranged so that your selections may be added by either writing or pasting on the blank pages, from time to time, pieces you wish to preserve. The first edition has been nearly sold, so those who would avoid waiting for the second edition should order now. Fill out the attached coupon and send it in at once. Books shipped in the order of coupons received. Price $1.50.

TAKE THE REPUBLICAN.

SIZED UP NAPOLEON.

Victor Schoelcher, the eminent writer, politician and republican philanthropist who died lately in France, after an honorable life of nearly 90 years, had a quick eye for dishonesty of character. As a deputy, he voted to permit the return of Louis Napoleon to France, believing that the time had come for universal forgiveness. Louis Napoleon read a speech thanking the deputies, and full of apparently frank protestations of fidelity to the republic. Schoelcher shook his head when he heard this speech. "I watched him through my glass," he said, "and his paper never trembled in his hand. He is too cool to be an honest man. We shall have occasion to regret his coming into the country." This estimate proved quite true, for in a few years Napoleon had, by a most remarkable series of falsehoods and betrayals, overthrown the republic and possessed himself of despotic power.

PALACE OF SALT.

A most exquisitely beautiful building was erected recently at Salt Lake City. It is a palace of pure salt, apparently all in one piece. The method of its construction was most ingenious. A framework of timber was erected, the surface of which was coated with certain chemicals. Then brine was pumped out of the Great Salt Lake and sprayed by fine hose nozzles over the woodwork. As the water evaporated the salt dried solid on the wood. The objection to salt as a building material is that it will not resist rain. So the Salt Lake palace was naturally a temporary structure, meant to last only during the dry season.

ATHLETIC NOBLEWOMAN.

The athletic career of Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, better known as Lady Constance McKenzie, has been full of glittering feats. In America she played polo with men, riding astride. In Somaliland she rode inland in a soldier's gray shirt and khaki trousers, and was only turned back by the military authorities for fear the Mullah might sweep down on her. She can ride and drive most creatures that are put to saddle and harness. She is, in short, a lady of great beauty, vivacity, and spirits, and looks extremely well in kilts of McKenzie tartan, which, until her marriage, at least, she usually affected in her Highland home.—London Tit-Bits.

COULDN'T LOSE HIM.

Mr. Grump—Now, barber, I only want to be shaved. I don't want my hair cut, dyed, singed or shampooed or my mustache waxed. I don't want a bath, hair invigorator, dandruff remover, or a facial massage.
Barber—Are you troubled with corns or ingrowing nails, sir?

AUNTIE WASN'T LIBERAL.

"What are you so out of sorts about?"
"Such wretched luck! Got $50 under my aunt's will. Didn't expect anything, but that she should leave me so little was a surprise, I confess."

THE SHOOTING FISH.

The shooting fish, so called, is the beaked or rostrated chaetodon, a native of the fresh waters of India. There is probably no fish in existence that catches its prey in a more peculiar manner than does this singular species. When he sees a fly alighting on any of the plants which overhang the shallow water, he approaches with the utmost caution, coming as perpendicularly as possible under the object of premeditated attack. Then, placing himself in an oblique direction, with the mouth and eyes near the surface, he remains a moment immovable, taking his aim like a first-rate rifleman. Having fixed his eyes directly on the insect, he darts at it a drop of water from his tubular snout, but before showing his mouth above the surface, from which only a drop seems to rise, and that with such effect that though at the distance of four feet, five feet or six feet, he very seldom fails to bring his prey into the water.

ESSENTIAL TO SUCCESS.

Sir Thomas Henry Sanderson, who retired a few months ago after having been for over 11 years permanent under-secretary of state for foreign affairs, always declared that the essential qualifications for a young man entering upon a diplomatic career were "the ability to remember all he hears and the sense to keep it to himself." A standing joke among those intimate with the under-secretary was that he never answered the simplest remark without carefully turning it over in his mind and examining it in all its bearings. On one occasion, it was said, he met a well-known politician in the corridor of the foreign office, who called out genially: "A very fine day, Sir Thomas." "Is that so?" responded Sir Thomas, deeply meditating: "I will have inquiries made and let you know about it!" The king years ago dubbed Sir Thomas Sanderson "the Keeper of the Nation's Secrets."

HANDED A LEMON.

She—How about a lemon squeezer?

SAUSAGES IN ART.

"And what do you use the sausages for?"
"For the coloring matter. Saves the cost of color tubes."

HER ONE-TIME HERO.

Young Wife—No, Jack, you are not quite what I thought you were before we were married.
Young Husband—No? Better or worse?
Y. W.—Neither exactly.
Y. H.—How's that?
Y. W.—Well, I've struck an average, as you say. What I thought was worse is better, and what I thought better is worse.

WELL SUPPLIED.

Singleton—I suppose your wife has a lot of will power.

Wedderly—Yes; but she has a lot of won't power.

DOUBLY HONORED.

Sir Robert Hart, who did much for China, possesses one distinction that belongs to himself alone. He appears twice in the official French d'Honneur—once as a simple "officer," Sir Robert Hart, and once as "Grand Officer Sir Hart (Robert)."

WANTED—Men in each state to travel, tack signs and distribute samples and circulars of our goods. Salary $80.00 per month, $3.00 per day for expenses. Saunders Co., Dept. S. 46-50 Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill. 1474 are caused by indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart. Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 9.

Story of a Submarine

(Original.)

A party of Japanese were sitting in a tent on one of the burned blocks of San Francisco after the recent earthquake swapping yarns.

"Ishiro," said one, "tell us about the battle of the Sea of Japan. I have heard that your arm of the service—the submarines—accomplished nothing, so you must have had a fine chance to see the light."

"It's," granted Ishiro Ishimura, "that comes of orders for secrecy. However, I don't mind telling you fellows an experience of twelve of us that was more terrible than any other in that terrible fight. At any rate it was unique."

"We were ordered to torpedo the Russian flagship. Well, you know the secrecy of our government. It was not desired that any success of our submarines should be known. So we were all sworn to secrecy. As soon as we sighted the fleet and located the flagship we skinned the surface behind and, concealed by one of our own vessels till we got in position, then fired the tanks, closed the conning tower and settled down. A submarine has a vertical and a horizontal rudder, and as soon as we reached the proper depth to move forward under water the horizontal rudder was turned to keep her from going down farther.
At the same time the propeller was started."

"Perhaps if one of you landlubbers had been aboard you wouldn't have had sense enough to be frightened at noticing that the boat didn't obey her rudder. Instead of moving straight ahead she kept going lower. There is a tank in a submarine to be used only in an emergency. It holds five tons of water and can be emptied in a jiffy.
Our lieutenant in command ordered this tank emptied."

"We all expected to see our boat rise like a cork. She didn't do any such thing. She started to rise, but soon began sinking again. The screw should have been stopped, for since our nose was pointed down we only sank the quicker. Down, down we went till there was a shock, and we knew she had struck bottom. It was at least comforting to know that we couldn't go any lower—that is, if there is any comfort in being at the bottom of the sea without much hope of getting to the surface. The officers were cool, but any one could see that they expected almost certain death. I glanced at the depth register and was horrible to see that we were 170 feet beneath the surface."

"Three alternatives threatened us.
First, there were many tons of water holding down the conning tower, our only means of getting out; second, the terrible pressure without was forcing the water in through leaks that were starting and threatened to drown us, and, third, we would at last be suffocated by poisonous gases."

"And yet you say the men in the submarines had nothing to do but look at the light. All we could see of it was through the periscope, but we weren't looking at the light. We were making a fight for our lives."

"We must rise to the surface at once or never. The lieutenant ordered the rotary pump started to expel the water ballast from the tanks. What was our horror to find that the pressure of water from the outside was greater than the force of the pump. But one hope remained—the hand pump. On this we must put a greater force than on the mechanical pump. Would it stand so great a strain?

"There was not a man put to work on that pump but expended more power than he had ever expended before or ever would again. All pumped, knowing that if the attempt was a failure there was nothing more to be done."

"The pump proved strong enough for the work, and the men proved strong enough to expel the water against the enormous pressure from without."

"The happiest moment of my life was feeling the boat leave the bottom.
The question now was whether we could get out of the depths before a collapse. It was like the last moments of a race when a spasmodic effort is needed to win. Under such an effort we rose slowly till we reached the surface. Then we gasped in relief."

"So you failed to torpedo the flagship?"

Ishimura cast a look of scorn at the speaker. "Not so fast, if you please.
Our commander gave us ten minutes to rest, while the sweat poured out of us in streams. Then we dived again."

"Dived again?" exclaimed every one at once.

"Yes, the lieutenant had no fancy for harakiri, which would have been necessary for him had he failed to make a second attempt, so we filled tanks, and down we went. This time she obeyed her rudder, and we moved along about ten feet below the surface. We could feel a tremor at every explosion of cannon. The lieutenant watched the Russian through the periscope, and it was difficult, I can tell you, to keep the thing just above the surface, and when we got into position I was ordered to let a little water out of the forward trimming tank.
This brought the boat to slant upward, and the lieutenant gave the order to fire."

"And you blew her up?"

"The result I am sworn not to tell.
I regard my oath, and I do not care to incure the enmity of the navy department of Japan."

"But the lieutenant—he did not have to commit harakiri?"

"The lieutenant? Oh, he is now an admiral in the Japanese navy!"

Mines are idle to-day on account of election.

Notice.

On Saturday, December 15, 1906, between the hours of 8:30 a. m., and 3:30 p. m. I will hold examinations at my office in Hartford for the purpose of selecting four beneficiaries to the Normal department of the State College at Lexington, and five beneficiaries to the Western State Normal School at Bowling Green.

Information concerning the appointment can be had by addressing the respective presidents of the schools, or by consulting me.

All persons intending to take either of these examinations should register their names with me before the examination.

J. M. DEWEES, S. O. C. S.

Important Notice.

We have added a stock of building material, such as Sash, Doors, Columns, Moulding, Etc., Yellow Pine Flooring, Ceiling Metal, Paroid and Paper Roofing, in short, anything you may need in the building line.
We will saw your logs and plane your lumber. Call and see us.

BEAN BROS., Hartford Ky.

Are You Superstitious.

The following invocation with the accompanying letter of explanation is being sent out over the county with request to "not break the chain."

Oh Lord Jesus Christ we implore thee. Oh eternal Lord have mercy on all mankind, keep us from sin by thy precious blood and take us to serve with Thee eternally.

Amen.

This prayer was sent by Bishop Lawrence requesting it to be written and sent to nine other persons.
He says one who will not will be afflicted with some misfortune, one who pays no attention to it will meet with a dreadful accident, but the one who rewrites it every day beginning on day it is received and sends one each day to some friend asking them to do the same, that one will on or after the ninth day receive great joy and be delivered from every calamity.

ROXEY.

county. This will be in the Green river District and is a monument to the push and energy of the Equity people of Narrows and vicinity, and gives the "doubting Thomas" who said it could not be done, a very black eye. Let everybody come and help to make this a great day for Equity.

We wish to say also that work on the new pooling houses being built at Fordsville and Magan is being pushed rapidly, and these will be ready for opening by or before December 1, 1906. All these houses will be owned and controlled by Equity people and will be opened by Equity men.
